African music icon and global reggae ambassador Alpha Blondy addressed the Sri Lankan media at Cinnamon Grand Colombo ahead of his debut concert, scheduled for July 19, 2025, at the Sri Lanka Air Force Grounds in Colombo. The press conference, hosted by Cinnamon Grand Colombo, marked a significant cultural moment as the official hospitality partner for the artist's landmark visit.

Born Seydou Koné in Côte d'Ivoire, Alpha Blondy emerged on the international music scene in 1982 with the release of his album Jah Glory, featuring the influential single "Brigadier Sabari," a powerful protest anthem against state-inflicted violence. Over the span of four decades, Blondy has released more than 20 studio albums, earning recognition as the "Bob Marley of Africa." Renowned for his multilingual lyrics delivered in Dioula, French, English, Arabic, and Hebrew, his music carries enduring messages of peace, religious unity, and political neutrality. His work was globally recognized with a Grammy nomination in 2003 for the album Merci, followed by his appointment as UN Ambassador of Peace for Côte d'Ivoire in 2005, in acknowledgment of his contributions to national reconciliation.

During the media briefing, the Grammy-nominated artist expressed his appreciation for the warm welcome he received in Sri Lanka, noting the country's natural beauty and the spirit of its people. "Sri Lanka is a beautiful country, and the people are very hospitable and friendly. I consider it my luck to be here," he said. "Music is a universal language, so it is common to any country. I hope to communicate with Sri Lankans in that language in the next few days."
