Dilmah Conservation launches publication

Posted on

(L-R): Dr Sudheera M W Ranwala, author, Dilhan C Fernando, Merrill J Fernando, Dilmah Founder, Dr A H Magdon Jayasuriya, author, Chathura Rathnawadu, Chandimal Ranathunga, two winners of the online question series

In an effort to promote harmonious coexistence between man and nature, Dilmah Conservation launched its latest book, ‘Common Forest Trees of Sri Lanka’ authored by Dr Sudheera M W Ranwala, Dr A H Magdon Jayasuriya and I A D Nadeesha Dilrukshi. Dilmah also celebrated the event with the launching of their newest tea in the Dilmah t-series range, the Park Estate Emerald Green Special OP.

Dilmah Conservation firmly believes that this new publication will successfully convey to society the importance of conserving our forest and trees. The publication being less technical makes it appealing for the general public and distributes a wealth of knowledge otherwise confined to the scientific domain. The publication is available for retail at both Dilmah t-Lounge outlets located at Chatham Street and Independence Square.