

From the secluded Wilderness

Posted on

Crossing all manner of terrain

Block II of Yala National Park was recently opened to the public. Stretching from Kumana southward it is strewn with ideal habitats for wild water buffaloes and elephants. The often laborious journey through untouched terrain leads to sights and sounds of the thriving wilderness.

Photography by Lars Sorenson

