

Jetwing hotel chain took part in Earth Hour, an international campaign initiated by the World Wild Life Fund (WWF) in order to inspire individuals, societies, businesses and governments to combat climate change.

Jetwing Hotels contributed by switching off lights for an hour from all Jetwing properties across the country.

“Taking part in this year’s Earth Hour is not something we take lightly; we have a long-term plan to raise awareness about sustainability and green living. It isn’t just about switching off lights for an hour, but in doing so saving the planet we live in a step at a time, and we sincerely believe in this effort” said Hiran Cooray, Chairman - Jetwing.
