

One of the pieces of jewellery produced by Jewel Laurel

Further to its recent expansion to North America, Jewel Laurel, a brand already established in the UK, has managed to retain its reputation in satisfying the needs of its clientele from around the globe regardless of their tastes and requirements. By coming up with an array of creative designs for genuine gem studded jewellery, the organisation continues to maintain the reputation it has earned over the years by competing with globally renowned brands.

Ever ready and willing to cater to foreign tourists as well as to the expatriate community living in Sri Lanka in addition to its local clientele, Jewel Laurel now undertakes to export gems and jewellery purchased during the festive season free of charge to friends and relatives of the customers living overseas. In celebration of the Christmas and New Year season, a special discount will also be on offer during December and January.

Catering to tourists, the expatriate community in Sri Lanka and its local clientele, Jewel Laurel undertakes to export gems and jewellery purchased during up-coming festive season free of charge.
