Clothing and bags made of bamboo yarn. As Anuradha Yahampath, Kandygs Design Director, stated, “this is our contribution to sustainable development.” The company specialising in handloom bamboo textiles takes the utmost care to not exploit the people nor the environment involved in making their products.

With bamboo, natural beauty, practicality and sustainability go together. Bamboo fabric is soft like cashmere and shines like silk, but is much more affordable.

The extensive bamboo collection of products includes shawls, wraps, throws, soft toys, clothing, bags and fabric, among other items. The latest launch focuses on clothing and bags. Side-by-side on display, there can also be found bags made of hand-woven cotton. A wide selection of bags in a variety of styles, sizes and colours: tote bags, make-up bags, school bags and pencil cases. For young children the colourful backpacks with either an overhanging elephant, butterfly, fish or ladybug and matching keychains. Those who value art and nature will appreciate the jute bags series with hand-paintings of Sri Lankan flowers.
