La Belle Époque opens banquet hall

Posted on

Facade of the newly-opened banquet hall

The banquet hall of La Belle Époque was opened at De Saram Road, Mount Lavinia, in the twilight hours, to the rhythm of amazing music. Situated beside the Indian Ocean, the banquet hall is an ideal venue at which to host weddings, corporate events, family functions and soirées. A wonderful ambience is created in the evenings with its decor and lighting, and the breezy wind that sways the night away.

The beautifully-curated property has a large garden and lawn, an infinity pool, a built-in resident bar, two en suite bedrooms and a kitchen equipped with modern facilities. La Belle Époque is located on a property that embraces a rich history that dates back to over a century. It was owned by Her Majesty the Queen of England and conveyed to the ancestors of the current owners in 1845. The 20th century saw the construction of this colonial bungalow on a vast coconut estate. The building was built as a beachside holiday home, bound by French teak-framed windows with ample natural ventilation and large verandahs.

In keeping with its history, this modernized establishment has the capacity to host a wide variety of events suited to individual needs. The modernised facility with its range of services has produced an atmosphere which guarantees an experience that is exceptional and memorable.

Saltaire chalets and a specialised restaurant called La Langousterie also operate on the same property as La Belle Époque.