Some items from the tapas menu at Casa Colombo

Sri Lankans have recently come to adore the appetizers known as ‘Tapas’, which originated from Spain. And for those who love to nibble on these treats, Casa Colombo has come up with a unique tapas menu, which takes an interesting twist to give you flavours from all around the world.

The tapas menu at Casa Colombo features several items that are agreeable with the Sri Lankan palate. So if you would like to experience tapas without straying from your usual spicy hit, you could try some items like baked crab pot curry, which is curried steely crab thermidor served with roasted bread or devilled chicken gizzard, which is black pepper, mustard and curry chicken gizzard with cheese croutons. And perhaps a more curious item on the menu is the ‘tuna coconut sambal tortilla’.

The tapas menu at Casa Colombo draws inspiration from all over the world, so you can expect a fusion tapas menu that will give you a different flavour with each dish.
